Want vs. NEED

Three simple steps to help you tell the difference and eliminate waste.

1. Ask yourself some simple questions

"One of the toughest aspects about budgeting is separating wants from needs," says personal finance expert Paula Pant. Every budget needs both, but distinguishing between the two can make you more aware of how you're spending your money and help you cut waste.

To tell if something's a want or a need, just ask these three questions.

If you answer no to any of them, it's a need. But if you answer yes to all, it's a want.

- | | YES | NO |
|--|--------------------------|--------------------------|
| 1. Can I live without this? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 2. Can I work without this? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 3. Would other people classify this as a want? | <input type="checkbox"/> | <input type="checkbox"/> |

2. Make a list

NEEDS

- Rent or Mortgage
- Car Expenses / Public Transit
- Gas and Electric
-  Water and Sewage
- Health Insurance
- Phone (Landline and Cell Phone)
- Basic Toiletries
- Child Care
- Groceries
- Loan Repayment

WANTS

- Cable or Satellite TV
-  Internet, Computer and Smart Phone
- Fancy Food (including extras like chips, cookies, & coffee, anything organic, and eating out)
- Beauty Products
- Subscriptions (magazine, Netflix, etc.)
- Holidays and Gifts
- Charitable Donations

3. Strike a balance

"There's nothing wrong with buying fancy bread and milk or subscribing to Netflix," Pant says. If you identify the things you choose to spend money on, then you can choose not to spend it if you need to allocate funds elsewhere.
